BURGLAR IN PETTICOATS

hase After a Female Thief by Patrolnun Marshall-Thirteen Unlucky Chickens-Confession Leads to an Arrest-Six Small Robberies Reported to Hendquarters.

Local burgiars were at work before daylight this morning in the fashionable quar ter of West Washington. These crooks were not as successful as the professionals who robbed Rev. Mr. Howell's residence, however, for they were promptly captured and landed in Lieut. Boyle's station

Last night the northwest section was patrolled from midnight to daylight by a number of policenee in charens' clothes Some of these were from the Third pre cinct. Others were from the Fourth and Sixth, but they were all upon the same bent-to capture housebreakers. Policeman Mulvey, of No. 6, was passing along Connecticut avenue about 2 o'clock this morning. He was muffled up in a great coat and wore noiseless arctics, with rubber soles. Suddenly the stiliness was broken by the crashing of glass. MULVEY ON THE ALERT.

Mulvey stole into the shadow of a big elm tree, awaited developments. He did icious sounds in the basement of Prof. Graham Bell's magnificent residence No. 1331 Connecticut avenue. N cisclessit Mulvey glided to the front of Prof. Bell's house and peering into the basement saw the form of a man crouching under the front basement stairs, where the large refrigerator is located. "Come out of that?" commanded the

"Don't shoot, mister; I'll come out," replied the man. Then the figure bounded up the stairs to the sidewalk and Policeman Muivey scized the man. He was a stoutly-built negro and gave his name as Lewis Scott.

"I works in dat house," said the prisoner. The doorbell was rung and Prof. Bell proused. He denied that the prisoner was in his employ and the man was locked up at No. 3 station.

Polfeeman Mulvey then made a search of the basement and found that Scott had been enjoying a feast at Prof. Bell's expense. He had opened the refrigerator and helped himself to cheese, cold meats, siltelles and ice cold beer. The noise which first attracted Mulvey's attention was the breaking of a beer bottle which the thief had dropped. It was probably Scott's intention to have broken into the house after he had satisfied the cravings of the inner man, as a rusty hatchet was found near the man's diadowy retreat in the basement. In the police court today he pleaded guilty and was ent to jail for sixty days. About the same time tast night Policeman Marshall, who was detailed from No. 4 for duty in West Washington, was having a chase after suspected maje and female burglars at Ninetcenth and R streets, near hev. Mr. Howell's residence, which was recently robbed of over $1,000 worth of silverware.

CHASED THE WOMAN. Policeman Marshall was bundled up in a great gray ulster and wore rubber "sneakeasies," like Mulvey, In the dim light he discerned the figure of a man and woman near the above-named corner, and hailed them. The man was car-rying a large basket. When he saw the soliceman trying to everhaul him, the man dropped the basket and ran away. The woman also tried to escape, but the rubber-soled officer soon had her under arrest, and she proved to be a burginr in petticonts. The basket was found to contain thirteen large, fine bens, with their heads wrong. The woman gave her name as Mary Davis. She is a negro, and told conflicting stories about the possession of the unlucky number of thirteen chickens When taken to Lieut, Boyle's station she was "sweated," and said the man with her was a pegro named Edward Johnson, who lives in an alley between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth and M and N streets. Marshall and other policemen went there and captured the fellow. The police then tried to find the heads of the thirteen dead fowls. but did not succeed. The prisoners are held until the owners of the chickens can be found.

Johnson denied that he is the man wanted but his pants and shoes are bespattered with It is believed that Mary Davis will con

Prisoner Set Up Whisky-Arnell Became Muddled, and, Thinking Candler Was Trying to Make His Escape, He Yelled Murder and Drew His Revolver.

The excitement in Alexandria over the alleged attempt of Barry Candler, the notorious Jackson City gambler, to escape last night from the jail, where he is servng out a year's sentence, bas given place to amusement since the facts have become known.

It turns out that there was no attempt whatever made by the convict to get away, and the farore was the result of a joyful jag. in which Marcus Arnell, the night jail guard, was the most conspicuous figure. Ever since his confinement Candler has been allowed the freedom of the jail building and yard, and it is even hinted that oft on a stilly night he and the guard have made little pilgrimages to the neighboring saloons, where, in the course of events, Candler was frequently compelled to take charge of the jailor. WAS THIRSTY AND LONESOME. Last night, when Arnell went on duty, andler had been locked in his cell. The mard was lonesome and thirsty, although he had already surrounded a quantity of Alexandria whisky. He knew that Candler had a well-filled bottle in his room and he "Do you want to sit downstairs for a while?" he asked, rather thickly, "Yes." "Come on, and bring your bottle," said

Arnell. The obliging Harry said "cert." and producing the flask, marched downstairs with the accommodating jailor. They sat down just inside the door, and Arnell proceeded to fill up. He drank and drank. His voice became thicker, and his head wobbled from side to side.

He soon became totally oblivious to the presence of his prisoner, who, finding it impossible to get possession of the bottle, was dreaming of the green fields around his saloon at the Virginia end of Long bridge. Suddenly a wobble, more violent than its predecessors, roused Arnell somewhat, and looking up he saw a confusion of Harry Candlers before him. He had forgotten hav-ing invited his prisoner down. He did not associate Candler with the whisky. The idea that his prisoner was trying to escape came over him with startling suddenness and he climbed weakly to his feet, exclaim-

"You told me to come down," said Candler. He arose as he spoke and Arnell ought he was about to be assaulted.
"Murder!" he yelled, and politing out his revolver he stumbled to the door. Excitement ran riot, and Candler, seeing his drunken jailor waving his gun wildly. and a crowd approaching the jail, rushed upstairs to his cell. He wa slocked out, nowever, so he sought refuge in a fireplace in an empty room

Arnell kept up his cries, and a number of policemen and citizens swooped down on juil. They searched the building to see who was breaking jail, found Candler in his hiding place, dragged him forth and downstairs and handled him so roughly that his swoon was not a fictitiousone.

SCANDAL AT ALEXANDRIA YOUNG OFFICERS TESTED

Recent Graduates From Annapolis as Well as Non-Commissioned Officers, Participated in the Annual Inspection-Companies Are Put Through Interesting Maneuvers.

The annual inspection and close of th school of Application of the United States Marine Corps occurred at the Marine Bar racks today. After graduating from the Naval Academy these officers are sent here, and from september until the latter part of April, are on duty at the barracks. They then spend a month at the navy yard, where they are instructed in gunnery, after which they go to the Naval War College at Newport, of Application really means a graduation

R. I., where four more months are spent. They are then ready for their life's work. THE GRADUATING CLASS. The class this year included Lieut. Myers and Magill, as well as a number of non-commissioned officers. The order of exercises were divided into two sectionstheoretical and practical. The former included the examination of classes, class papers, naps, etc. The students in this case were the non-comp officers, the lieutenants having been exanined some time ago. Capt. Murphy, commanding officer of the post, and Lieuts. Pengieton and Russell conducted the exammations. They began at 9:30 o'clock and lasted about an hour.

The practical portion of the program, which was commenced immediately after the completion of the theoretical examination, was the loadstone which drew the spectators inside the gray stone walls that surrounds Uncle Sam's reservation. The judges were Major Reid, Capt. Rebinson, Capt. Goodwell, Capt. Murphy and Lieut.

The field mane overs began with the school of the company, in which Lieut, Myers commanded the first company and Lient. Magill the second. Sergts. Fairbanks, Heinsohn. Manning and Lawler acted as licutenants. Both companies were put through the manual of arms and also the marching tactics. Following this came the bayonet exercises, with the extended order and street riot drift.

MEN WERE WELL DRILED.

Three companies were used in the school of the battalion, Lieut. Myers acting as commander. The evolutions of the men showed a high state of proficiency and the young commander issued his orders with the sang froid of a veteran. The companies presented a beautiful sight as they swept across the large, wellkept drill ground, with the miniature fort and warship in the distance. The brilliant red coats of the Marine Band, who were grounds, added a charming dash of color service, in which Lieut. Magill acted as commander. Then came the attack and capture of the position. This was nothing more than a sham battle on a small scale. The fort was manned, assaulted, the storming party was repulsed, and there was noise enough to delight the army of small boys who were looking on. Lieut. Myers had commanded the support.

Then followed instructions in field en gineering, in which defenses were built in than it takes to tell of them. Lieut, Magill commanded the detackment while the working part was in charge of Sergt. Heinsohn. At the conclusion of the exercises there was an inspection and review, followed by a full dress parade, after which the band under the leadership of Prof. Fanciulli, gave a delightful concert on the lawn.

DISTRICT OFFICIALS' ORDER

The Garbage Crematory Employe Had Violated a Regulation-Dismissals and Appointments in the Fire and Police Departments-A Citizen's Plea for Relief.

The District Commissioners today issued a peremptory order requiring Contractor Warfield of the garbage service, to remove Inspector M. E. Danforth from his employ.
Danforth is accused of violating section eleven of the garbage regulations, which prescribes that any official or employe using improper language, or who may be de-tected as being under the influence of liquor, or who may demand payment of citizens for services rendered, or who may faisify any report he may be called upon to make, shall be discharged, and his dismissal acts as distarment for further work on the

The specific charge against the inspector was of making an incorrect report to the health officer in respect to a complaint received of the inefficient service of the contracter's collectors.

The complaint came from one of the hotels-Dr. Woodward declined to say which—and Danforth, as an employe of Mr. Warfield, went to investigate. He returned to the health officer with a radical modification of the charge; the proprietorexplaining by letter that his intention in notifying the office was to secure a daily

The action of today is the sequence. Two changes in the fire department force were ordered to be made today, as follows: The resignation of Private Harry Friedrich was accepted, and Joseph Waldron ap-pointed to succeed him, the order to take effect on the 23d instant.

Private Frank Locabo-ler was ordered to be removed, and J. P. Sylvester appointed in his stead, the service of the latter beuing the 27th instant. Ernest 8. Green has been appointed a member of the police force, vice A.F. Seng-stack, removed. The latter was convicted of gross neglect of duty, it having been shown that he remained in the Cairo Flats an hour one evening to the disregard of PLEA FOR RELIEF.

Mr. Talbert Lanston, who owns three dwellings, Nos. 1404 to 1408 Eleventh street northwest, in which the water supply is dericient, was before the Commissioners today with an urgent plea for relief. His houses are two and one-half stories in height, with the bathrooms on the upper floor. He was obliged, several years ago, he said, to incur an expense of $1,000 for

Mr. Lauston contends that as his houses were built before the adoption of the regu-
